"DIPPING COW" NETS $20,000 IN AUCTION
WASHINGTON COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS

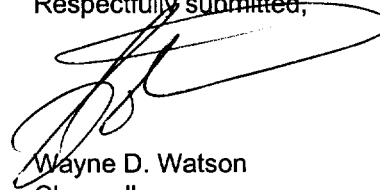

that Washington College's entry in the "Cows on Parade" program netted a grand total of $20,201.00 as part of the Internet auction held in November as the widely popular exhibit came to a close; and that the College's entry, entitle "Dipping Cow", was the artistic concept and under the direction of Professor Armen Sarrafian of the Art Department and executed by a group of students who volunteered time during the summer to "drip" paint over the cow in order to paint it; and that the College is pleased by the enthusiastic reception (both artistic and monetary) of our favorite bovine and grateful to Professor Sarrafian and the especially to the students who generously donated of their time and talent to make our cow a proud participant in the city-wide endeavor; and that the proceeds gained by the auction will be added to our scholarship fund.
