WRITING STUDENT HAS STORY PUBLISHED
TRUMAN COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

- REPORTS that Cathy Scherer, a student of Truman College writing teacher Mel Livatino, has had her story, Blues in the Night, accepted for publication in the January 2001 issue of the journal Space and Time, which focuses on science and fantasy; and
- that Ms. Scherer has published more than 50 short stories and creative pieces and given half a dozen public readings; and
- that her work has appeared in such highly regarded magazines as Kenyon Review, New American Writing, Washington Review, Mississippi Review, Potomac Review and Chicago Review; and
- that she has won an Illinois Arts Council Fellowship and three Illinois Arts Council Awards; and
- that in 1998, her piece, A Spy in the House of Old Age, was performed at the Court Theatre in Hyde Park, sponsored by WBEZ, and later performed on the air on WBEZ; and
- that in addition to her piece in Space and Time, Ms. Scherer recently had her short story, Spent Earth, published in Margin, an Internet magazine focusing on modern magical realism.

Respectfully submitted,
