KENNEDY-KING COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS

that on June 12, 2000 Kennedy-King College credit and Continuing Education Departments hosted Alderpersons Leslie Harrison of the 5th Ward and Toni Preckwinckle of the 4th Ward. Both were informed of the Colleges ongoing programmatic and long range plans for preparing local residents for training and employment in the 21st century marketplace; and that the Alderpersons committed to continue working closely with College administrators on such specific needs as computer hardware for the Colleges computer tutorial and linking constituent service requests to appropriate educational training program activities at Kennedy-King College; and that courses taught by local entrepreneurs and celebrities are attracting new students. Former Chicago Bull Craig Hodges, teaches fitness this summer. Jun Mhoon founder of Music Industry Consultants, prepares students for entrepreneurial positions in the entertainment business; and Ernest & Young computer specialist, Steve Bellinger also owner of BEE.com., demystifies the Internet in his computer class.

Respectfully submitted,
