CISCO ACADEMY STARTED
TRUMAN COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

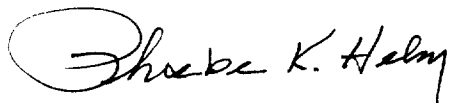

REPORTS that due to high demand for CISCO Certified Network Analysts (CCNA), Truman College has become a CISCO Certified Training Academy providing CCNA training; and that starting in October 2000, the Truman College Continuing Education Department will begin offering CCNA training to prepare students to take the CCNA and industry standard CompTIA Networking and Certification exams; and that starting in January 2001, CCNA training will be offered as part of the College Credit Program; and that CISCO Systems is the world's leading manufacturer of equipment that makes it possible to build and maintain computer networks.

Respectfully submitted

Wayne D. Watson
