ART PROFESSOR OPENS NEW CENTER IN PARIS
TRUMAN COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

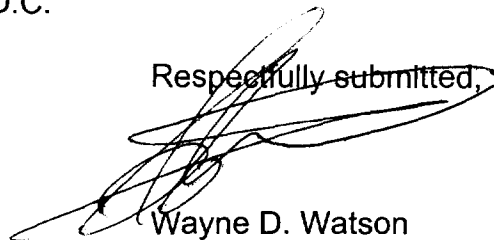

REPORTS

that an exhibition of sculpture by Truman College art Professor Amir Nour headlined the opening of the new French American Center for the Arts in Paris.

that the opening ceremonies held in Paris on June 12 was attended by Mayor Richard M. Daley and his wife, Maggie, she headed the center's honorary committee. The center is housed in a museum space leased from designer Pierre Cardin which has been provided as a meeting place for artists from all over the world to work together in an informal atmosphere.

Professor Nour is considered one of the pre-eminent African artists working in the world today. His work is on display in private and public collections all over the world, including the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

Respectfully submitted,
