NATIONAL ACCREDITATION BY THE COUNCIL
WASHINGTON COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

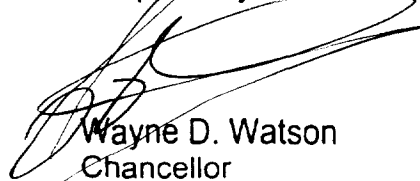

REPORTS

that Washington College's Office of Vocational Training and development was awarded a two-year accreditation (maximum of 3 years) by the Council. This attainment demonstrates Washington College's commitment to excellence in the provision of services for persons with disabilities; and that to attain accreditation, the Office of Vocational Training and Development underwent a rigorous accreditation review on February 5-8, 2001, conducted by the Council who interviewed people receiving services, family members and staff, and observed programs and services provided by the organization. The Office of Vocational Training and Development was found to provide quality services and supports to people with disabilities; and that the Council is a national quality enhancement organization representing national consumer and professional organizations and service providers who are dedicated to improving the quality of services for people with disabilities.

Respectfully submitted,

Wayne D. Watson
