Wright College's Workforce Training Center Hosts Workshop
On "Negotiating Interventions with the Elderly"

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS

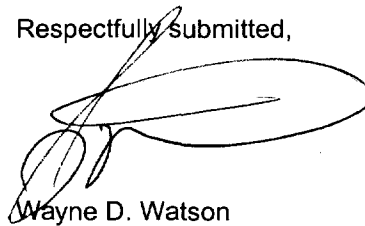

Wright College's Workforce Training Center partnered with the Chicago Board of Health, Department of Aging, and Northwestern University's Buehler Center on Aging to sponsor four workshops, "Negotiating Interventions with the Elderly." Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Illinois provided the funding.

The purpose of the workshops was to provide participants with information that will help them be more effective in helping older adults during a heat wave or other crisis situation.

Wright North hosted the first workshop on April 25. Others took place May 10 at the City Colleges of Chicago District Office, May 24 at Olive-Harvey College, and June 6 at Wright North.

Enrollments far exceeded anticipations, with as many as 86 for a single workshop. Participants included Public Health Nurses, CHA Building Managers, 311 Operators, Police District Senior Services Officers, Resident Service Coordinators and others who work with older adults and individuals at risk.

Respectfully submitted,

Wayne D. Watson
