ELENA MULCAHY WINS LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD
TRUMAN COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS that Elena Mulcahy, Director of School-College Partnerships at Harry S Truman College, was one of five women honored with a Sor Juana Achievement Award given by the Mexican Fine Arts Center Museum October 4; and that the awards, begun in 1998, honor the lifetime achievements of Mexican women living and working in Chicago; and that Dr. Mulcahy has worked in education in Illinois for more than 30 years, including with the State Board of Education and the Chicago Public Schools; and that for the CPS, she held a variety of administrative positions, including that of Director of Multicultural and Multiethnic Education; and that at Truman, she has strengthened the relationship between the college and its feeder high schools through a variety of innovative programs, including Integrated Field Experiences in which teachers visit local employers to understand the connection between what they teach and how those skills translate to the workplace.
