APPLICATION

These Tables provide flexible articulated posturing of the surgical patient, assuring maximum operative convenience.

DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION

General. Both the 2080L and 2080RC tables comply with the Radiation Control for Health and Safety Act of October 18, 1968. They are also certified by Canadian Standards Association to CSA Standard C22.2, No. 125 — 1979 — Electromedical Equipment. They are electro-hydraulically operated for easy positioning. The 2080RC offers, in addition to its lever-operated control system, "Touch Command" ... for precise positioning of the table from outside the surgical field.

NOTE: The 2080L conforms with requirements set forth in National Fire Protection Association's Pamphlet 56A. It is also listed by Underwriters Laboratories as being safe for use in Class I, Group C hazardous locations, including the requirements of UL Standard 544.

Base is cast iron with textured-enamel finish. The top is enclosed by a welded, stainless-steel cover that also forms a shroud for the lower portion of the pedestal. A swivel castor and height-adjustable floor lock at each corner of the base are actuated by a single pedal. Both are electrically conductive, conforming with applicable requirements of NFPA's publication Flammable Anesthetics Code. The base provides comfortable toe space on both sides as well as space to freely insert a flat-blade Mayo stand. A NFPA-approved patient grounding receptacle is provided at foot-end of base.

Hydraulic System is also contained within the base assembly. The electro-hydraulic pump and motor assembly forms a straight-line sealed unit; the motor includes overload protection. An auxiliary pump provides manual operation in event of electrical power failure, without sacrificing table-positioning flexibility.

Pedestal includes tabletop lift cylinder, support column with bearing-mounted saddle frame, hydraulic piping, and electrical wiring (2080RC only). These are fully enclosed by stainless-steel telescoping shrouds.
