Wright College's Stage Wright Theater Troupe Produces Its 10th Play

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS

The first play produced by Wright College's new Visual and Performing Arts Department, The Foreigner by Larry Shue, was presented by Stage Wright in December. There were six performances.

Students involved included seven actors and a stage crew of six. The play was directed by Professor John Frisco, a Wright College lecturer in Theater and Speech; artistic director was Professor Maria Jaskot-Inclan, also co-chair of Wright's Visual and Performing Arts Department, and adjunct Professor Megan Geigner, who served as lighting designer and costume consultant.

The play, which was well attended, was a comedy with an underlying theme of respect for diversity.

This is the tenth production of Stage Wright.
