Kennedy-King College's Mary McLeod Bethune Women's Center Presented Its Third Annual Women's Fair

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS that Kennedy-King College's Mary McLeod Bethune Women's Center presented its third annual Englewood Women's Health Fair, "Empowering Ourselves: The Body, Mind & Spirit," on Saturday, October 14, 2006. The Mary McLeod Bethune Women's Center community outreach effort was a successful event with approximately three hundred people attending.

that this year's event covered various health topics, including the focal topic, HPV, Human Papillomavirus and the current campaign, "Tell Someone." Doctors Cheryl E. Woodson, MD, FACP, AGSF; Catherine M. Wilbert, MD FAOCG; and Corrine Blum, MD were the featured physicians. The annual health fair always presents an opportunity to showcase Kennedy-King College's nursing students to the community. The LPN nursing students were there, taking blood pressure screenings. Pfizer Pharmaceuticals', one of the event sponsors, representative Charles Wade, spoke about the company's Medication Assistance Program. In addition to the health topics, financial empowerment was featured by Kimberly Jones, a Branch Manager of Park National Bank, another sponsor. Senator Mattie Hunter informed the audience about the Breast Cancer Lottery Ticket and Congressman Bobby L. Rush spoke about the importance of women's health initiatives in the community.

that the attendees received a continental breakfast and a box lunch, as well as complimentary massages, manicures, product samples and various raffle prizes. This event was free.
