THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS

that USA Today reviewed over 1,500 applications from members of Phi Theta Kappa, the two-year college International Honor Society. Donna Gentry, an Olive-Harvey College student, has been named one of twenty of the nation's best community college students. In addition to the recognition from USA Today, which included a trophy and a $4,000 cash award, Ms. Gentry was also named the New Century Scholar and was awarded a $2,000 scholarship given by the Cola-Cola Corporation to the top community college student for the State of Illinois; and that during her time at Olive-Harvey College, Ms. Gentry maintained an A average (3.93 cumulative GPA), while volunteering as the choir director at her daughter's grammar school, and caring for her family. She has been involved a variety of college activities and held offices in two major student organizations including president of the African-American Student Association and president of the Student Government Association.

Respectfully submitted,

Wayne D. Watson
