Spring 2008 "One Week, Endless Possibilities..."
MALCOLM X COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS

that College Advisors at Malcolm X College organized a week of activities in order to assist students to reach their educational and career goals. On Monday, March 10, 2008, staff facilitated a series of workshops in order to prepare students for the week of events. Students received information on resume writing, dressing appropriately for interviews, transferring to four-year colleges, and general academic advising. On Tuesday, March 11, 2008 Malcolm X College hosted its Spring 2008 College Fair. Over 25 universities participants took part in the event; and

On Wednesday, March 12, 2008, during the Spring 2008 Career and Health Fair, a total of 44 employers and program representatives provided information on employment opportunities, health science programs and available resources within the community. An awards luncheon was held after the Fair to recognize employers for their commitment involvement with the College and the community; and that on Thursday, March 13, 2008 40 Malcolm X College academic, career, continuing education, adult education, academic and support services departments; and student clubs and organizations participated in the College Resource Fair 2008. The Fair provided students with an opportunity to become familiar with the various programs and resources the College offers. Close to 1,000 students participated and benefited from the weeks' activities and feedback from employers, recruiters and students was extremely positive.

Respectfully submitted,

Wayne D. Watson
