TRUMAN THEATER PROJECT PRODUCES “ORPHANS” TRUMAN COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS that the Truman Theater Project produced Lyle Kessler’s play, "Orphans," in July in Novar Hall at the college; and that this is the second production of the fledgling Truman Theater Project, founded to use Truman actors to stage plays by Truman or City Colleges students and staff; and that last year's inaugural show, "Who's Afraid of Affirmative Action?," was written by Truman adjunct and professional actor Varrick Douglas; and that the group's founder, Rick Reardon, is also a professional actor and teaches in Truman Middle College.

Respectfully submitted,

Deidra J. Lewis
Interim Chancellor
