THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS

that on April 16, 2009, Malcolm X College Department of Biology presented two seminars for students, “Preparation for the Next Step in One’s Educational Future” and “Becoming a Scientist: Considerations for the Minority Student Choosing a Career in Science.” Facilitated by Dr. Thomas Landefeld of California State University, Dominguez Hills, the seminars were attended by nearly 75 students. Support from the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology/Minority Access to Research Careers’ Visiting Scientist Program made the event possible. Professor Tracie Hudson coordinated the seminars, under the supervision of Dr. Helen Doss.
