BIOLOGY CAREER SEMINAR
Malcolm X College

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS

that the Malcolm X College Biology Club hosted the second annual four-day Biology Career Seminar Series during the week of October 25, 2010. The goal of the Biology Career Seminar was to motivate undecided students to major in biology by introducing students to the diverse career options in the biological science field of study. There were a total of twenty-seven (27) speakers from a broad spectrum of science career tracks, including local health care providers, MXC program directors, world renowned researchers, cardiologists, the Chief of Infections Diseases and the Chief of Psychiatry from the adjacent medical district; and that each speaker volunteered one hour of their time to share information regarding their specific career and/or research, education/training, job outlook, daily schedule and some of the encounters that had sparked their interest in the field.

Respectfully submitted,

Cheryl L. Hyman
