Faculty Artist
HAROLD WASHINGTON COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS that on Thursday April 8, 2010, Athir Mahmud, Assistant Professor of Computer Information Systems at Harold Washington College, had her art work on display at the DePaul University Museum at 2350 N. Kenmore, and; that the free exhibit featured works of faculty members from throughout the Chicago university community, and;

that Professor Mahmud presented an oil painting entitled, “Paradise Lost,” described by the artist as close to surrealism, and;

that Professor Mahmud has been drawing and painting since childhood, often writing poetry to correspond with her paintings. She also worked for Gallery 37 as an apprentice artist and senior apprentice artist and minored in studio art in college, and;

that some of Professor Mahmud’s paintings, drawings, etchings, and graphic pieces have received local recognition from Mayor Daley and national recognition, one painting being showcased at the Smithsonian.

Respectfully submitted,

Cheryl L. Hyman
Chancellor
