PROFESSOR PRODUCES POETRY AND PLAYS OVER SUMMER
TRUMAN COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS that over the summer, Dr. Timothy Matos of Communications published the first three stanzas (150 lines) of a long narrative poem called Sweat of Tears in an upcoming anthology of prose poems called Narrative (Dis)continuities: Prose Experiments by Younger American Writers, forthcoming from Vox Books some time in 2011; and that he was the dramaturge for Buran Theatre Company's new show, The House of Fitzcarraldo, which opens at the Kansas City Fringe Festival in late August; and that in December, he will have a new short play premiere with the Courier 12 Collective at Lincoln Square Theatre; and that his poetry book, A School for Fishermen, is now available online at Amazon, Borders, and Barnes and Noble.

Respectfully submitted,

Cheryl L. Hyman
Chancellor
