Black History Month Celebration

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS

that Malcolm X College, in maintaining its firm commitment to a diverse student body reflective of the cultural and ethnic mosaic that is Chicago, held its annual Black History Month Celebration. The theme for this year's Black History Month was "Creating Our Own Story Through Education". The theme's purpose was to encourage students to analyze what has taken place over the last thousand years of Black History. The activities, held throughout February, were developed in order to assist students to actively prepare for what the future may hold for their generation, as well, as future generations and become active in writing their own history; and that, through utilizing renowned speakers, films, symposia and faculty presenters, Malcolm X College offered opportunities for students to engage in quality educational, cultural, and philosophical discussions; and that the months activities concluded with a Taste of Africa and a performance by the College's artists-in residence, NAJWA Dance Corps.

Respectfully submitted,
