2004 Spring PICU College Fair

MALCOLM X COLLEGE

THE CHANCELLOR

REPORTS that the Advising and Transfer Services Center hosted its Spring PICU (Private Illinois Colleges and Universities) College Fair March 9, 2004. Twelve schools were in attendance: National Louis University, Dominican University, West Suburban College of Nursing, Aurora University, De Paul University, Columbia College, Roosevelt University, Saint Xavier University, Concordia University, Robert Morris College, Loyola University and Trinity Christian College; and that the various schools offered an array of transfer options for Malcolm X College graduating students. The representatives were able to answer the students' most frequently asked question: "How much is your tuition?", as well as, assist some of the college's non-traditional students in identifying accelerated degree completion programs. This activity gave Malcolm X College students the opportunity to selectively "shop around" among some of the finest colleges and universities in the Chicagoland area; and that the PICU College Fair afforded the students the chance to complete perspective interest cards, fill out applications and gain valuable resource information regarding scholarships. There was excellent student participation and the college representatives were impressed with the students and how well they were prepared.

Respectfully submitted,

Wayne D. Watson
Chancellor
